

T A B L E O F C O N T E N T S

Preface

Editorial Note

Page 1: Onomastic Concepts of "Bear" in Comparative Myth: Anglo-Saxon and Greek Literature. By Thalia Phillis Feldman, Canisius College, Buffalo, New York.

Page 22: English "Davit"/Old French "Daviet" and Modern French "Davier:" A Biblical Echo in Medieval Sailors' Speech (with Remarks on Semantic and Phonological Theory). By J. Peter Maher, Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago, Illinois.

Page 28: An Onomastic Review of Gilbert-and-Sullivan. By E. Wallace McMillen, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, New Jersey.

Page 40: Allegory and Nominal Identity in Melville's Poem Clarel. By Hélène Rozenberg-Sacks, University of Paris, Paris, France.

Page 47: The Name "Göngu-Hrólf" in the Old Norse Göngu-Hrólf's Saga. By Hilda Radzin, St. John's University, Jamaica, New York.

Page 53: Chekhov's Humorous Names. By John P. Pauls, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Page 66: Onomatology of Male Characters in the One Hundred Years of Solitude of Gabriel García Marquez. By John C. Miller, Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. (With Family Tree.)

Page 74: Some Functions of Names in Galdós's Novels. By Luis A. Oyarzun, State University of New York, Brockport, New York.

Page 84: Place-Names in Traditional Ballads. By W. F. H. Nicolaisen, State University of New York, Binghamton, New York.

Page 103: Onomastics as a Modern Critical Approach to Literature. By Grace Alvarez-Altmán, State University of New York, Brockport, New York. (Banquet Address.)